The stampede of bibulous Washingtonians on the offices of doctors holding permits to write liquor prescriptions has been pretty well broken up by drastic action of internal revenue agents in arresting three practitioners.

The third arrest occurred yesterday afternoon when Dr. John Joseph Slattery, with offices at 2020 I street, was served with a warrant by Detective William Wright and Policeman E. S. Clocks "Jazzed," N. Y. Commuters Can't Tell Time LANDLORDS SAY

New York, March 21.-New Jersey commuters who start from home at 7 o'clock Monday morning of next week and arrive in New York an hour later will find themselves in a o'clock town.

Much confusion is expected because New York City and State have adopted daylight saving and New Jersey has not And then-there may be developments during the week which will disrupt any plans which may be made to meet the situation, A bill is before the Senate for adoption of the light saving program. A bill is also before the New York State legislature repealing the law, but it is not believed this bill will be passed.

Railroads bringing Jersey commuters to their work on Manhattan Island have made no effort to change schedules. They will leave it to the public to arrange their own programs to fit the complicated situation. Commuters from New York towns, excepting Long Island suburbs, and from Connecticut will be more lucky, however, as the New York Central and New Haven lines are working on tentative schedules which will help overcome the mix-up.
